Poetry.

From Nature's Arcana.

The following is an extract from a poem by one of the Elders of the South Groton community, read at the dedication of a cotton mill in Shirley, Mass.

When we assemble, these walls dedicating,
This social gathering we welcome with joy!
Labor and toil we are thus consecrating,
To sonable service—a happy employ;
Breathing the spirit of UNION and ORDER,
May this be the Temple of Freedom and Truth,
While angels, who hover around Zion's border,
Affection and blessing may bring to the youth.

The Temple of God is the heart of his servant;
Its voice, O Devotion! what pleasure we owe!
While in thy power we are active and fervent,
Our love and our blessing, to ALL freely flow;
In march of improvement we hail with true pleasure,
Yielding such "leisure to all to be good;"
Our thoughts may be turned to the heavenly treasure,
And God give us wisdom to live as we should.

Where purity, order, and truth are presiding,
We may well rejoice that he "left free the will,"
How pleasant is labor, when tranquility guiding
The strength which the elements yield to our skill;
Solomon, king of that powerful nation,
Who added a system like this to his fame,
Hail all its improvements! then civilization
Most grateful tribute had paid to his name!

Yea, had he constructed the LOOM and the SPINDLE,
The daughters of Israel his memory had blest,
His ivory throne," into nothing would dwindle,
The nations and empires his wisdom confessed,
And all earthly thrones it was doubtless most glorious;
What is a throne (!) in this day of REFORM?
"Cast down"! saith the prophet; God's truth is victorious!
The kings in the East may prepare for the storm.

In the name of Antiquity! how thou surprisest,
Art truly enlightened of all distant climes:
And yet of all men was king Solomon wisest,
Than Moses was meekest in those ancient times.
The glorious account of thy "temple of Cedar,"
Inlaid with wrought gold," we are pleased to review,
We list to thy songs in the fair tents of Kedar,
But why should thy wisdom devise nothing new?

That many should run to and fro," as said Daniel,
Though long reigned oppression with her cruel rod,
The railroads and steamers have opened the channel,
And knowledge increased! 'twas the purpose of God,
And these with thy wisdom, O king, emanated,
The Press, and the lightning on Telegraph wire,
And all with thyself! to the Lord dedicated.
That triumphs of thought would be left to admire.

SONG.

Who will be with thee at the rest of even,
(Those sacred hours, so tranquil and so lone)
Gazing with thee upon the darkening heaven,
Breathing soft thoughts by tender impulse given,
When I am gone?

Who will be with thee by the murmuring fountain
List'ning the mellow horn at distance blown;
Or sigh of breeze awaking on the mountain,
Or the wild night-bird all his bliss recounting,
When I am gone?

Day, active day, its aspects ever changing,
With hopes pursued, or needful duties done,
Will lure thro' varied scenes thy spirit ranging,
Thy busy thoughts awhile from me estranging,
When I am gone?

But thou wilt miss me in the evening's leisure,
When all the hopes and cares of day have flown;
Who then for thee will search out fancy's treasure
Or sing to thee in strains of tranquil pleasure
When I am gone?

Be happy in the day's meridian splendor;
Take up each flower that on thy path is strown;
But still at eve to me thy heart surrender;
Call back our lovely memory true and tender,
When I am gone?

ALL THINGS ARE OF GOD.

BY MOORE.

Thou art, O God, the life and light
Of all this wondrous world we see;
Its glow by day, its smile by night,
Are but reflections caught from thee;
Where'er we turn, thy glories shine,
And all things fair and bright are thine.

When day, with farewell beam delays,
Among the opening clouds of even,
And we can almost think we gaze
Through opening vistas into heaven—
Those hues that mark the sun's decline,
So soft, so radiant, Lord, are thine.

When night, with wings of starry gloom,
O'ershadows all the earth and skies,
Like some dark, beauteous bird, whose plume
Is sparkling with unnumbered eyes,
That sacred gloom, those fires divine,
So grand, so countless, Lord, are thine.

When youthful spring around us breathes,
Thy spirit warms her fragrant sigh;
And every flower that summer wreaths
Is born beneath thy kindling eye;
Where'er we turn, thy glories shine,
And all things fair and bright are thine.

THE PAST.

O, teach him, while your lessons last,
To judge the present by the past;
Remind him of each wish pursued;
How rich it glow'd with promis'd good;
Remind him of each wish enjoy'd,
How soon it hope's possession cloyed! Scott.

Agriculture.

SPARE THE QUAILS.—We cannot too strongly impress upon the minds of Northern farmers, the propriety of making some suitable provision for the preservation of this domestic little game-bird, during the severity of winter. The necessity for such a step has repeatedly presented itself to us during the late long continued severe cold, whenever we have passed through the market of our city and have seen the vast quantities of game of all kinds, and especially of quail, which remain unsold, although offered at a very low price. Every farmer is acquainted with this bird, though few are aware of their usefulness in ridding the land of noxious plants, such as thistles, docks, &c. During the early summer, before any grain is matured, this little bird is to be seen gleaning its food from among the weeds fast ripening along with the crops, and which would otherwise prove a source of incalculable annoyance.

When we consider that each full-grown bird consumes a gill of seed a day, we can imagine of how much service they in reality are. Audubon, the great Ornithologist of America, conclusively proves their usefulness to the husbandman. The sportsman well knows that it is useless to beat for quail in a country overgrown with weeds. How much then does it behoove farmers to make some protection for so useful a bird, when they are unable to provide for themselves, and are beset on all sides by the snares and trap-guns of the rascally poacher. It is lamentable to witness the reckless and open infringements of the already too lenient game laws, and to see the vast quantities of game so wantonly, not to be sold, but thrown away for want of purchasers.

These remarks are made not with any hope of preserving quail for this season, but with a desire to induce our readers to further aid, by all means in their power, the increase of a bird so useful as this—useful not only in their fields, but also for the amusement it affords the sportsman at the proper season, and also as an article of food. In the past Winter the mischief has been done—henceforth let it be shown what we can do to remedy it and prevent its recurrence.—Am. Ag.

WOLF TEETH IN HORSES.—Wolf teeth are quite common, and many good horses are made blind by them. I had two horses or colts, which had them last season. The cure is simple and easy. Take a piece of iron with a square end, one-fourth of an inch in size. Let one hold the horse and open the lip so as to enable the one with a small mallet knock the tooth out. There is no root to the wolf teeth The best way is to take the horse to a blacksmith shop, and the smith with his punch will knock them out in two minutes. When you see the horse's eye begins to run and look glassy, look for the wolf tooth. It is a small, sharp tooth, just forward of the grinders of the upper jaw.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY IN TREE GROWING. M. Millot Brule has discovered that the bifurcation of trees is effected by caterpillars and other leaf-eaters eat the buds thro' the centre. He found, further, that fruit might be dealt with in the same way as the wood, and that by intersection of buds two or four may be made out of one, and the fruit branches multiplied. In the place of those assidous pruners, and intersectors, the insects, he uses his penknife or a bit of stiff paper, and arranges the trees in a way at once the most picturesque and fantastic. Under his fingers the obedient branches assume the most varied and elegant forms; he increases the fructification, and developes the formation of buds according to his wish.

LICE ON FARM STOCK.—Horses in this vicinity are much troubled with lice.—Please give us a remedy.—S. Manchester January, 1857. In answer to which inquiry we republish the following from a correspondent:—"When any stock is infested with lice, whether horses, cattle, sheep or hogs, I give copperas in their food every other day, for six or eight days; say a tea-spoonful to a sheep. If the above directions are followed, I will pledge my word the prescription will kill the vermin inside and out, leaving your cattle with a clean stomach and a healthy skin. The remedy is so simple you may not think it worth trying, but it is no humbug."

PUBLIC LANDS.—The sales of public land, in 1856 amounted to 17,690,000 acres, nearly four times the area of Massachusetts. Congress has given to the States in the same time, 21,700,000 acres which will soon be disposed of by the States, making a total of sales and grants of 39,300,000 acres, equal in extent to the whole of Virginia. It is estimated that farming and industrial productions amounted, last year, to the value of $2,600,000,000. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the value of the whole property in the United States, taxed and untaxed, exclusive of the public lands, at $11,317,000,000.

Selected Tale.

I WOULDN'T DO IT.
OR FEMALE INFLUENCE.

BY CATHARINE M. TROWBRIDGE.

In a cool, airy, chamber of a neat country dwelling, sat a drooping invalid, reclining feebly, almost helplessly, in a large easy chair. The beautiful hectic on the otherwise palid cheeks, proclaimed the victim of consumption. On a low ottoman at her feet, was seated a young girl of ten summers. They were sisters. The elder had been not only a sister, but also a mother to the younger, who retained no recollection of the tender parent in whose arms her infancy was cradled Yet had she scarcely missed a mother's care, so faithfully had that elder sister performed to her a mother's part.

But now she too was smitten down, and well did Ellen Hastings know that they soon must part; for her sister Clara had not concealed from her the certainty of the painful separation which must take place. She had often spoken to Ellen of her own departure, as calmly as she would of an anticipated journey. In this way the fair young girl had become familiar with the idea, and thoughts of death usually invested with such terror, had been robbed of half their gloom, when she saw how calmly, trustingly, and confidingly her sister could enter the dark valley. If this calmness was ever in danger of being ruffled, it was when Clara thought of her darling Ellen, who clung to her lovingly as the tender vine clings to the firm support about which it twines.

Since Ellen had taken her seat upon the ottoman, no word had broken the silence, but interchanging glances had spoken volumes of sisterly affection and tender regret. The face of the invalid was expressive of a yearning tenderness, not unmixed with a shade of anxiety, as her thoughts were busy with the coming separation. The countenance of Ellen expressed intense affection and sorrowful apprehension. At last the silence was broken by Clara, who spoke as if all that had been passing in the mind of each had found utterance in words, and she was but continuing the subject on which they had been communing.

"Dear Ellen, I want you then to remember two things,' she said. How much was expressed in that simple then! To Ellen it spoke of the time when the separation so dreaded should actually have taken place, and should no longer be sheltered and blest by the tender, watchful love which had cared for her from the hour when the cold sods fell heavily upon the coffin of her mother.

For a brief moment, the poor girl hid her face in her sister's lap, and a convulsive sob, half-repressed, broke from her. But soon she raised her head, and tried to say calmly—

'What is it, dear sister, that you wish me to remember?'

'Two things, my love. And yet both can be comprised in four short words, so that you can always remember them. I want you should promise me that you will ever strive, both to be good and to do good. Only four words—Be good: Do good. But could I know that what they express would be embodied in your future life, how calmly and hopefully could I leave you, for I should be sure that your feet would never stray into any devious paths of sin or error. Will you try to remember these four short words, and practice the two maxims comprised in them?'

'I will dear sister,' replied Ellen. 'I know I can strive to be good, but how can a little girl like me do good?'

'In many ways' my love, if with sweet humility and truthfulness you strive to do it. I will tell you of one way. Ever cherish in your own heart true and right sentiments, and when a proper occasion occurs for giving utterance to such sentiments, never shrink from doing so. In this way you will always exert a happy influence upon those with whom you associate. Perhaps at another time I may tell you of other ways in which even a little girl may do good.

But that other time never came. A violent fit of coughing was induced by the exertion of speaking. After it was over, the invalid was conveyed, exhausted, to her couch, from which she never rose again. It was the last time Ellen was left alone with her sister. One older and more experienced now constantly took the place which she had so frequently occupied as nurse. After this, every attempt to converse distressed the fast failing invalid, and these proved to be her dying words, her parting counsel to the sister she had so fondly cherished. As such, they made a deep and indelible impression upon Ellen who had always listened to her sister as to an oracle of wisdom, and who now treasured in the depths of her heart these her last words.

Ellen felt very sad and lonely after the death and burial of her sister. She took it so much to heart, that she grew thin and pale, and looked only like the shadow of her former self. Her father watched this state of things with much anxiety; for Ellen was now the only treasure left him, and he was disposed to guard her with the tenderest care. He resolved to change the scene, and divert her thoughts from the deep grief which was preying on both mind and body, by sending her to spend a few weeks at the house of a friend who had a large family of children, some older and some younger than Ellen. Mr. Hastings felt sure that the society which his daughter would find there, would soon dissipate the sadness which oppressed the mind of the bereaved girl.

When Ellen arrived at Mr. Herbert's she found there a lively group; for to his own large family were added, as guests, beside Ellen Hastings, a son and daughter of a distant relative.

At first, Ellen felt little disposed to join in the mirth and gaiety which always reigns where such a group of children, buoyant with health and happiness, are collected. But she was naturally of a social and lively disposition, and though her mirthfulness was tempered and subdued by the remembrance of her recent affliction, she was soon ready to join cheerfully, and with a keen relish, in the occupations and amusements of her young companions.

Ellen soon made friends with all, not excepting Arthur and Lucy Dunning, who like herself were guests at the hospitable mansion of Mr. Herbert. Arthur Dunning possessed a fine flow of spirits and a ready invention, which added much to the enjoyments of the juvenile circle of which he was for the time being a member. If a new feature added zest to an old and almost wornout form of recreation, Arthur was usually the inventor of it. Or if a ready sally of wit threw the whole circle into a convulsive fit of laughter, he was the author of it. But it must also be confessed that he was somewhat reckless and mischievous. If, at times, he greatly promoted the enjoyment of his companions, he, at other times, greatly marred it by the mischievous tricks which he delighted to play upon them. At last, the observation was frequently made, that Arthur Dunning would be a first-rate fellow, if he was not so full of his tricks.

One day when Ellen entered the nursery, she found it occupied only by little Mary Herbert, who was very busy in erecting what she considered a very imposing edifice, with the materials furnished by a box of building blocks. She was putting the finishing touch on the work when Ellen entered. Mary turned round, and seeing who it was, exclaimed triumphantly.

'There, Ellen, isn't that first-rate?'

'It is very well done,' said Ellen—'What is it?—a church?'

'A church!—no! said Mary, almost indignantly. 'Don't you see it is a great factory? It looks almost just like those Sarah and I saw last week when father took us to C. I will go and ask Sarah if it don't. Where is she? do you know?'

'She was in the garden when I came in.'

'I will go and ask her to come here.—Won't you stay here till I come back, and see what she says to it?'

Ellen good-humoredly promised to comply with this request.

Scarcely had Mary left the room, when Arthur entered it. As soon as he saw the pile of blocks which Mary had denominated a factory, he turned to Ellen, and said,

'Who did that?'

'Little Mary did it. She calls it a factory.'

'A factory! ha! I will just tumble it over, and see what Mary will say when she gets back.'

Arthur advanced towards the miniature factory to execute his intention. But Ellen sprang towards him, and before his foot had touched it, laid her hand on his arm, saying earnestly and pleadingly,

'Arthur, I wouldn't do it.'

Arthur, arrested by the earnestness of her manner, stopped short, and looking her in the face, said,

'Why not, Ellen?'

For a moment, Ellen hesitated what reply to make. But as she stood there, uncertain what answer to give to this interrogation, a scene was suddenly presented to her mind, which almost dimmed her eyes with tears. She was not in the nursery at Mr. Herbert's, but she was in that sacred, well remembered chamber, seated on a low ottoman by the side of her sister. She heard her say, "Ever cherish in your own heart true and right sentiments, and when a proper occasion occurs for giving utterance to such sentiments, never shrink from doing so." This scene faded, and the reality was once more before her. Arthur Dunning was by her side, and he had asked her why he should not overturn the playhouse reared by Mary Herbert. Was not this a proper occasion for uttering the true and right sentiments she felt in relation to such deeds? Surely it must be so, and she would not hesitate, though perhaps the high-spirited and reckless Arthur would only laugh at her. The tender recollection which had been called up, probably persuasiveness to her manner, as with her hand still resting on Arthur's arm, she replied,

'Oh, because Mary thinks so much of it, and of showing it to Sarah. It will make her very unhappy if it is knocked down before Sarah sees it; and you know it is always a sad thing to make others unhappy. It is so much better to make them happy.'

Arthur looked earnestly at Ellen; but he did not laugh at her, as she almost feared he would. On the contrary, he said, in a subdued voice,

'I know you are right, Ellen: I will not knock it down.'

Ellen's words and manner made a much deeper impression than she was aware of. After this when Arthur was about to perpetrate any mischievous trick, it seemed to him as if a gentle hand was laid on his arm, and a soft, persuasive voice said, 'Arthur, I wouldn't do it;' and he could not do it. The consequence was, his young companions soon began to wonder how it happened that Arthur had so suddenly abandoned all his late tricks, and become so agreeable a companion. But no one, not even Ellen, guessed the cause. She was too modest to think of attributing an energy so potent to the few words she had spoken in the nursery.

Six years passed away, and Ellen Hastings was no longer a child, for she had bloomed into womanhood, having reached the golden age of the novelist, sweet sixteen. But during these winged years, which in their flight had borne her so rapidly to this point, she had never forgotten her beloved sister Clara or her parting counsel. To be good and to do good, had been her constant and noble aim. Such an aim could not fail to give a moral elevation and dignity to her whole character, which greatly enhanced those natural charms with which she had been endowed in no stinted measure.

When Ellen was sixteen, it so chanced that she spent a few days with a friend, who resided in a city where was located a flourishing college. One evening, during his visit, she was introduced to a small and select circle of intimate friends, among whom were two or three of the college students. One of these was no other than her old playmate at Mr. Herbert's, Arthur Dunning. But Ellen did not recognize him. They had not met since that time, and as that meeting had made no particular impression upon her mind, it was almost forgotten. When introduced to Mr. Dunning, no suspicion of ever having met him before crossed her mind.

Not so, however with Arthur Dunning. The impression made upon his mind had been far deeper, and therefore not so easily effaced by the lapse of years. As soon as Ellen was introduced to him as Miss Hastings, he was struck with something familiar in the glance which met his, and in the tones of the voice which fell on his ear.—They seemed to have a strange connection with some scene of the past, though all was dim and indistinct. He could not recall where he had met that glance and heard those tones.

For half an hour after this introduction Arthur Dunning puzzled and wearied himself by chasing this phantom of the past. Sometimes it would almost assume a tangible shape, and he would think he was about to seize it, when it would elude his mental grasp, seeming as airy and intangible as ever.

At length, one of the party with whom Miss Hastings was on terms of familiar intimacy, addressed her as 'Ellen my dear.' In a moment the misty veil was removed from the mind of Arthur Dunning, and he mentally exclaimed,

'I have it, I have it now; it is Ellen Hastings,' and internally the whole scene in the nursery at Mr. Herbert's, came up before him. 'It is the very same. I was sure that her countenance and the tones of her voice were strangely familiar, and equally sure that they were connected with some cherished recollection of the past—Ah! that fortnight at Mr. Herbert's—how well do I recollect it! Ellen Hastings was my good angel then.'

Towards the close of the evening, Arthur contrived to get by the side of Ellen, and also to draw her into a free and animated conversation. He was about to recall to her mind their former acquaintance, when the attention of both was arrested by the conversation of the other members of the little group.

Certain college regulations which were regarded by many of the students as very unreasonable, onerous and arbitrary, had occasioned a dissatisfaction so general, that a plan was forming and being openly discussed, to resist them. The disaffected students imagined they were so strong in numbers and influence, that if they combined in this movement, they should overawe the college officers, and compel them to modify the odious regulations. In this way they thought to escape the disgrace usually resulting from rebellion against college laws.

The plan had been boldly discussed by a portion of the students for some time, and those present did not hesitate to bring it forward and combat its feasibility, in the select circle there gathered. Arthur Dunning, who was naturally somewhat impatient of restraint, had been inclined to sympathize with the disaffected party, and had serious thoughts of joining them, should their plan be carried into execution.

The subject was discussed with much animation and earnestness by those present, and a variety of opinions were expressed in relation to it. After listening to the rest for some time, Arthur suddenly turned to Ellen, and said,

'What do you think of this measure, Miss Hastings? Would you advise us to join the party who are about to adopt it?'

'I wouldn't do it,' replied Ellen earnestly, though her cheeks were instantly after suffused with blushes, as she thought how frankly she had expressed her opinion to an entire stranger.

The words touched an electric chord in the mind of Arthur Dunning—'I would not do it." He was instantly transferred by them back to childhood's days. Once more he was in the nursery at Mr. Herbert's. The hand of the speaker was laid pleadingly, arrestingly on his arm. He could hardly persuade himself that he did not feel its gentle pressure. At last he roused himself from his musings sufficiently to recollect the silence which followed Miss Hastings' last words might seem to her long and strange. Almost mechanically he enquired, 'Why not?'

Ellen hesitated. Was she called upon to do so? She replied—

"I cannot approve of resistance to rightful authority. I know there are young men who, under certain circumstances, regard such a course as manly. But to me it seemes exactly the contrary. No course is so truly manly in a young man, as yielding gracefully and unhesitatingly to the authority of those who by virtue of their office have a right to claim obedience from him. If the regulations seems somewhat arbitrary, the manliness and self-command which yields obedience becomes only the more evident."

"But are there no cases in which arbitrary rule should be resisted?'

"I will not take it upon myself to answer this case in the negative. Allowing that such cases do occur, it does not seem this is one of them. I think that every member of the college who joins in this scheme of resistance, will one day regret it. More mature years will show him that he was hasty and impetuous,"

Arthur Dunning listened to Ellen's words as to an oracle, though certainly there was nothing oracular in the manner in which they were uttered; for that manner was singularly modest and unassuming, robbing her words of wisdom of anything which could appear like dictation. As Arthur remained silent, Ellen continued:

"Pardon me sir, if I have expressed my opinions too frankly. My only excuse is, that you asked for such an expression of them."

"And I thank you most sincerely for granting that request," replied Arthur warmly.

No further opportunity for conversation with Ellen was presented that evening, and Mr. Dunning parted with her without revealing the fact that he was the Arthur of by gone years.

But Ellen's frank protest against the proposed scheme of rebellion was not without its effect on Arthur Dunning. The plan was at last carried out by a portion of the students, who hoped their number and respectability would shield them from disgrace. But this hope proved delusive. The officers of the college were not so easily overawed. Those who enlisted in the scheme were driven to the alternative of making a humble confession of their error, and promising obedience to the very regulations to which they had rebelled, or of being expelled in disgrace.

But Arthur Dunning was not of their number. He pondered seriously the words which Ellen had spoken, and the result was that he did not do it, but at the expiration of his college course graduated with distinguished honor.

Five years passed away, and Ellen Hastings was spending some weeks at the house of another friend, in a city many miles distant from the one to which the brief visit just chronicled was made. Here again it was her fortune to meet with Arthur Dunning. He was introduced to her at a large party which she attended soon after her arrival. But she failed to recognize in the popular and pleasing young lawyer, whose talents and eminent social abilities had made him a universal favorite, the high-spirited and mischievous Arthur Dunning of childhood's memory, or the young collegian with whom she had passed but one brief evening.

this colony on the east side of the aforesaid Pawcatuck river or they must expect to be prosecuted against, according to law and justice."

Signed by an order of the General Assembly of his Majesties colony of Rhode Island, and Providence Plantations, and King's Province; settling at Newport the 9th of July, 1679 and by their order the seal affixed. Per

JOHN SANFORD, Recorder.

A tax of £60 was assessed on the towns as follows:—

Newport, 18, Portsmouth 11, Providence 4, Warwick 4, Westerly 4, Kingstown 6, Greenwich 3, Jamestown 6, and New Shoreham 4

The Assembly having received further countenance and authority from the King to govern the Narragansett country; they authorized the Governor and council to apprehend Mr. Richard Smith of Kingstown, and bring him to trial for an offence against the colony; inasmuch as he had petitioned the lords of the privy council in England against the jurisdiction of Rhode Island over the King's province; and as the assembly averred, that he had misrepresented the colony before the authority in England.

At the General Assembly held for the colony at Newport the 29th of October, 1679.

The assembly adjourned to, and met Nov. 10.

John Albro and John Smith, were appointed to run the line of the colony, and the Governor was requested to give notice to the Governor of Connecticut, that the thing might be done by mutual consent if possible.

1680

The Assembly met again on the 10th of March and adjourned to the 25th when on meeting, they adjourned until the next morning for the members to attend the funeral of the Governor who was to be buried that day.

Major Peleg Sanford was chosen Governor by the assembly in the place vacated by the death of Gov. Cranston.

Biography of Gov John Cranston.

He was descended from a noble family in Great Britain of the same name, and was one of the most prominent men of his time in Rhode Island, both in a civil and military capacity. He was appointed to command all the colony forces in Philip's war, and died Governor of the Colony on the 12th of March, 1680, in the 55th year of his age. He left a son, Samuel Cranston, who was afterwards Governor of the colony for many years.

A negro man named Peter Pylatt, was executed by hanging at Newport for the crime of rape, after which he was hung in gibbets on Wonnumetonomy Hill in the town of Newport.

At the General Assembly held for the colony at Newport, the 4th day of May 1680 and adjourned to the next day being the day of election.

SATURDAY MORNING, MARCH 14, 1857.

In an article on "Albany Fifty Years Ago," in the last number of Harper's Magazine, it is stated that the stove employed to heat the old Dutch Church was placed upon a platform so high that the sexton went upon it from the gallery to kindle fires, and the writer naturally concludes, "perhaps in those days heat descended, instead of ascending, as in these degenerate times." In days of yore, when time was young, less thought was bestowed upon the comforts that are to be derived from the cheerful hearth, but with all our strides in this particular we are by no means master of the art of heating and ventilating houses. We manage to keep them warmer, often too warm for health, and there is always a disturbance if the smoke is not carried off, but we do not do much in the way of ventilation or permit the air to enter our dwellings half as much as health and comfort require.

Stoves were invented and used before chimnies were even thought of, and it was not until the thirteenth century that the latter were known in England. When first adopted, a religious house, a manor house or a castle was allowed one. Artificial heat was thus but slightly esteemed, and it is related of the students of Oxford, in the time of HENRY VIIth, that after supper at eight o'clock, they went to their books till nine in winter, and then took a run for half an hour before going to bed, to warm themselves. And in the time of ELIZABETH it was said by HARRISON, in his description of Britain, "There are old men, dwelling in the valleys where "I remayne, who have noted three things to be "marvelously altered in Englande within their sound "remembrance. One is the multitude of chimnies "lately erected; whereas, in their younger days, "there were not above two or three, if so many, in "most uplandish towns of the realm (the religious "houses and manor places of the lords always ex-"cepted; and peradventure some great person-"ages) but each made his fire upon a rere dosse [a "sort of raised hearth in the middle of the hall] "where he dined and dressed his meat."

The smoke, of course, ascended, and made its escape out of the house as best it could which it was rather slow in doing, as those who have travelled among the little villages among the Apennines have been made painfully aware, when forced to pass a night in the one principal room of the house with a fire in the middle of the floor.

The Saxons built their houses in an unsubstantial manner; they were very open, even in winter, to admit the light and at the same time to allow the smoke to escape, and often they were burnt down (through the carelessness of those who made the fire) by placing the burning faggots too near the combustible walls. And this manner of keeping open house literally is set forth in the words of one of King EDWIN's Chieftains when addressing that monarch:—"The present life of man, O king, "seems to me, in comparison of that time which is "unknown to us, like to the swift flight of a spar-"row through the hall where you sit at your meal "in winter, with your chiefs and attendants, warmed "by a fire made in the middle of the hall, whilst "storms of rain now prevail without; the sparrow, "flying in at one door and immediately out of "another, whilst he is visible is safe from the win-"try storm, but after this short span of fair weather, "he immediately vanishes out of your sight, into "the dark winter from which he had emerged."

By the last arrival from Europe we have still further particulars of the ruins but recently discovered, and which are supposed to be those of the Tower of Babel. Whatever they may eventually prove to be, they are certainly very interesting and instructive, and they are thus referred to in a letter published in the Journal de Constantinople:—

"These ruins are still most imposing, and can be discovered at a distance of twenty leagues. Six of the eight stories of the tower have crumbled away. Its base forms a square of 194 metres. The bricks of which it is formed are of the purest clay and almost white. Before being baked they were covered with inscriptions, written in a clear and regular hand. Some persons in modern days have inquired where all the bitumen came from which was employed in the construction of the tower, as recorded in the 11th chapter of Genesis. It happens that a stream of bitumen still exists in the neighborhood of the tower, and flows in such abundance as at times to form a bona fide river. The inhabitants then set fire to it, and calmly wait until the flames die away from want of fuel. Several interesting photographic views have been taken by M. Place of the ruins, as well as of various parts of Nineveh. Among these ruins he discovered a quantity of small jewels, engraved stones, and a profusion of coins. Some of the engraved stones are remarkable; one is of a cylindrical shape, and pierced in the direction of the axis, in order to be suspended around the neck if necessary. On this piece of transparent quartz, the sculptor has engraved a figure with fine curling hair, dressed in a long narrow tunic, bordered with fringe. It is upright, and extends one hand towards an altar. Among other discoveries are inscriptions on bands of gold, silver and copper, and a species of unknown substance similar to ivory."

It having been stated by the Boston Post that the draft of the Farewell Address of WASHINGTON had been stolen, the Philadelphia Bulletin sets the matter at rest by the following:—

"The original draft was never in the possession of government. It was sent by Washington at the time it was written, to be published in the newspaper then published in this city by Mr. Claypoole.—The latter had it "set up" without damaging the "copy." The manuscript was carefully preserved by Mr. C., and in 1849 or '50, it was offered at public sale in this city by the heirs of Mr. Claypoole.—Congress entered into competition for the prize, but after a spirited bidding it was knocked off to James Lennox, Esq., of New York, for a sum exceeding two thousand dollars. Mr. L. had some exact copies of the address made for his friends, but the great original still remains in his possession. We trust that this explanation will relieve the patriotic indignation of those who evince so much anxiety concerning the important document."

The concert of the Newport Musical Institute came off at Aquidneck Hall on Friday evening of last week, and the room was crowded to excess, so that all the aisles and every place that could hold a foot, was occupied. The music was received with great applause, and it is very certain that entertainments of this description are very popular in Newport, for on every occasion when we have had a musical entertainment, the house has been well filled. We understand that the proceeds were intended to be devoted to charitable purposes; and whatever may be realized hereafter from the concerts of the society, will be devoted to the purchase of a musical library. With such houses as they had on Friday night it will not take long to accomplish this.

Since the above was written, we understand that the amount remaining, after paying expenses, was seventy-five dollars, which has been handed over to the Dorcas Society. Last evening the concert was repeated.

By the last overland mail we have the particulars of the losses sustained by the destruction of Dr. WILLIAMS' printing establishment at the time the foreign factories were burnt. The principal losses are the large font of Chinese type with which Dr. MORRISON's Dictionary was printed, types and press in ordinary use, a large stock of books on hand, numbering in all over ten thousand volumes, comprising the remaining copies of nearly all the works which have been printed during the past twenty-four years, some of which will never be reprinted. Besides these, Dr. HANCE's valuable collection of botanical works has been consumed.

An important decision in favor of this city was made by the Supreme Court holden at Bristol during the week, as we learn that the Court sustained the city in the bill in equity filed by Deblois, to test the Constitutionality of the Statute providing for the assessing and collecting of the tax for curb stones. Sheffield for complainant; Curry and Van Zandt for city.

Our thanks are due to Mr. COLBURN, principal of the State Normal School, for an invitation to be present at the examination of the school, which took place in Providence yesterday.

Why "Homœopathic Physicians" are regular and legal "Doctors of Medicine."

We too often hear that a physician, practising according to the homœopathic law, is not to be considered as a regular "Medicinoe Doctoris." To this false opinion, or malicious expression, we publicly answer, not only to defend the dignity of our own position, but also to stand for truth and justice.

When is a medical practitioner to be considered a regular "Doctor of Medicine?" Is it not when he has complied with all the regulations of, and received the testimonials (or diploma) from a college chartered by the legislature of the State, which charter gives the power to the Faculty and Trustees of said school, to confer upon those medical students, whom they deem qualified for the exercise of the healing art, those rights and privileges which are due to the professors of a medical science?

A long time ago, when first bills were brought before legislatures for appropriations or grants of charters for Homœopathic Institutions, great indignation and opposition naturally arose in the faculty of the old school, who ever contended to legislators the right to make such grants, or decide upon such questions. But public opinion is a powerful stream which sways everything in its way, and as legislators are but the elected representatives of the mass, they could not reject appeals seconded by large populations, who asked for institutions healthful to their well being. Therefore, appropriations were made, and charters granted in Germany, France, Italy, England, America, etc., for the erection of colleges for the study and diffusion of the newly practiced system of medicine. For more than fifty years have now these institutions undaunted stood the attacks of bigotry and skepticism, exile, banishment and persecution; and we must say for the glory of the great HAHNEMANN, that his disciples are spread, in spite of all this opposition, far and wide, over all the parts of the civilized world. It is only within the last ten or fifteen years, that the Faculty of the old school, having come to the conclusion that opposition, persecution and interference was useless, we have been permitted, undisturbed, to practice our system, and enjoy the privileges allowed to us by the law.

As the doors of the universities were closed against the face of Homœopathy, and that students entertaining views favorable to the new system were rejected from matriculation, or were refused to them the degrees which they had been aspiring to and preparing for, the erection of a separate school became necessary and inevitable. One of these colleges, to which I had the honor of belonging for three years, and from which I received those legal testimonials (or diploma) which enable me to exercise my profession is, "The Homœopathic College of Pennsylvania," which I take pleasure in mentioning particularly. This college is on the same footing and enjoys the same privileges as all other medical colleges of the State. It has been chartered since 1848, expressly for the purpose of embracing in the ordinary curriculum of medical studies, the science of Homœopathy; and in accordance with the principle of its charter, the college presents itself as a complete institution, with all the facilities for imparting instruction,

1st. In Practical and Surgical Anatomy.
2d. In Physiology.
3d. In Materia Medica and Therapeutics.
4th. In Homœopathic Institutes, Pathology and the Practice of Medicine.
5th In Obstetrics and Medical Jurisprudence.
6th. In Chemistry and Fossilogy.
7th. In Operative and Medical Surgery.

The opportunity for acquiring thorough knowledge in these branches, is as great in this institution as in any other in the country. It is not true that Allopathic Colleges furnish greater facilities for acquiring a practical knowledge in the various departments, for the City Hospitals are opened to all students of medicine, without any regard to medical theories; and as a proof of this statement, we can exhibit a certificate of attendance, which we received from the Medical Board of the Physicians, Surgeons and Guardians of the Philadelphia Hospitals, one of the largest hospitals in the world, for having attended their chemical lectures and practice for two years.

The affairs of the Homœopathic College are under the control of a Board of Managers, consisting of the President of the College and of gentlemen annually elected by the corporation.

The regulations of the college for the admission of students and for the candidates for graduation are precisely alike those of the Allopathic colleges. The candidate must be possessed of sufficient preliminary education—have attained the age of twenty-one years—have applied himself to the study of medicine for three years—attended two courses of medical lectures, and have been during that time the private pupil of a respectable practitioner of medicine. He then presents his thesis to the Faculty, and if found satisfactory he is entitled to an examination. Each Professor then examines the candidate in his respective branches, and if the examinations have resulted satisfactory, he is recommended to the Board of Managers for the degrees of "Doctor of Medicine," if not, he is rejected.

The candidate becomes then invested with the honors of his "Alma Mater;" declared his by the authority of the Commonwealth, rendered perpetual by all the powers she can exercise, and so true that not even the Commonwealth herself can deprive him of them.

T. S. VERDI, M. D.

Every person conversant with the most ordinary culinary operations, has noticed how often liquids, especially milk, is spoiled, by what is called "burning to the saucepan." To prevent this evil effectually, Count RUMFORD recommends double bottoms to all boilers and saucepans used in cooking. "The heat," he observes, "is so much obstructed in its passage through the thin sheets of air which, notwithstanding all the care which may be taken to bring the two bottoms into contact, will still remain between them, that the second has time to give its heat as fast as it receives it to the fluid in the boiler; and, consequently, it never acquires a degree of heat sufficient for burning anything that may be upon it." He suggests the expediency of doubling small copper saucepans and kettles throughout, and as this may be done with a very thin sheet of metal, the cost would not be much, even if the lining were of silver. When the two sheets of metal forming the double bottom, are made to touch each other throughout by hammering, they may be fastened together by a few small rivets, and afterwards be tinned, by which latter operation the edge of the false bottom may be soldered to the sides, and thus the water, or other liquids put into the boiler, be prevented from getting between the two bottoms.

EDITOR OF MERCURY:—It appears from your columns, that the Philharmonic Society are to give another of their universally pleasing performances next Friday evening.

The first part of the programme, as advertised, is the "Nightingale's Nest." This is a work peculiarly German in its character and very pleasing; performed repeatedly in Boston, it has been enjoyed by crowds. Undoubtedly, a part of its interest originates from its being in design a kind of riddle.

The Libretto in a few days will give your readers an opportunity to examine its plot.

Part second is to contain a large number of those old sterling English Glees which please all who are so fortunate as to hear them. On the programme, I notice RUSSELL's descriptive poem "Wind of the Winter's Night." The performance of this song has long been accorded among amateurs as among the most difficult of musical performances; and yet, when successfully rendered as among the most effective.

"Good Morning," the "Anvil Chorus," with its anvil accompaniment; "Katy Did" and "Katy Didn't" are there. We have no doubt as good a time may be expected as was enjoyed by the delighted audience at the last performance of this talented Society.

The Supreme Court adjourned its March term in this city on the evening of the 6th. The following is a continuation of their doings from our last:—

Petition for divorce of ELIZABETH T. BROWNELL, from CHARLES BROWNELL. Granted.

Case of THOMAS SPOONER vs. ABNER L. LELAND, for Preliminary injunction. Granted by Plaintiff giving bond to Defendant to the satisfaction of the Clerk in double the sum of the amount of Execution.

SARAH P. CLEAVELAND vs. NATHAN M. CHAFEE. Judgement for balance $539,72.

State vs. JAMES MCCARTER. Prisoner retracts his plea of not guilty of murder and pleads guilty of manslaughter. Sentenced to eighteen months in State Prison at hard labor.

MARY ANN HAZARD vs. ARNOLD HAZARD for divorce. Granted.

The report of the proceedings before the Judiciary Committee of the House, published in the Providence Post, has been ascribed to Mr. THOMAS R. HAZARD, and, consequently, lost any force it might otherwise have had; Mr. HAZARD, therefore, addressed a note to the Editor of the Post, in regard to the subject, who states in reply, in the columns of the Post, that he alone prepared the report, "without assistance or suggestions from any one, and was intended to be, and was, as full and correct a report of what transpired, as we could make in the brief time which it was found possible to devote to it." We have been desired to publish this article, as an act of justice to Mr. HAZARD, and should have done so, but our columns are somewhat crowded; we have therefore merely stated the fact, to remove every erroneous impression in regard to the matter.

On Thursday evening, the fourth and concluding lecture of the People's Course was delivered by Mr. B. P. SHILLABAR, on "the Street."

It was announced by Mr. TENNEY that two additional lectures will be given; the first next week, by Mr. GILMAN, who will continue the subject of his first lecture—New England Humor; and the second on the following work, by Rev. T. STARR KING.—If after paying the expenses of these lectures there is anything left over, it will be given to the Mechanics Association for the purchase of books.

The Persia brings the news of the death of Lord ELLESMERE, who was in the fifty-seventh year of his age. He was well known in this country, having visited the United States in 1853 as one of the Commissioners of the Queen, at the time of the Crystal Palace exhibition. Lord ELLESMERE was a scholar, a poet, and a munificent patron of Art, and before leaving the country he gave commissions to one—possibly to more—of our artists.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Vivia; The Secret of Power; by Mrs. Southworth. This work is now in press and will shortly be published by T. B Peterson, Philadelphia. Mrs Southworth, through her well known works, among the most popular of which is the "The Lost Heiress," "Retribution,' &c., is widely known as a writer of romance, and she has been very successful in the delineation of character and originality of design. The present work is said to surpass all that she has previously written. Price $1,25 in cloth.

The Border Rover, by Emerson Bennett, is also in press, and will shortly be published by T. B. Peterson, Philadelphia, and will be mailed, postage free, for $1, in two volumes, paper covers. The scene of the Border Rover is in the Territory of Kansas, beginning at Independence, Missouri, and extending over the plains to the Rocky Mountains.

The Panorama of Life and Literature, for March, from Littell & Company, is received, and its attractions are, an article on French Algeria, from the London Quarterly; Craigcrook Castle, from the Examiner; a continuation of the Fortunes of Glencore; The Frenchman of Two Wives, from Household Words; An Adventure of Dartmouth, from Chambers' Journal, and many other fine selections—the whole furnished at $3 a year.

The Happy Home, for March, is received, and its table of contents is full of subjects peculiarly adapted to promote its end—the improvement of the family circle—Incidental Education, A Parent's Love, Life, Home, Sabbath Evening at Home, Education of Girls, &c., &c.

Littell's Living Age, for the week, has an article from Blackwoods, on European Politics; Going to the Play in China, from Chambers Journal; and articles from the London Examiner, Literary Gazette, Household Words, &c.

City Council.

NEWPORT, March 10, 1857.

BOARD OF ALDERMEN.—Present, His Honor the Mayor, and Aldermen Braman, Ailman, Freeborn and Weaver.

Finance report No. 17 recommending bills to the amount of $762,53 to be paid from city treasury, granted.

Resolved, That his Honor the Mayor be authorized to draw on the city treasury for two hundred and twenty-five dollars in favor of Charles Hunter for land taken into the highway recently laid open from Long Lane to Malbone Lane, that being the amount at which the Board of Aldermen valued the damage sustained by said Hunter, by reason of the road passing through his land. Passed.

Resolved, That the City Clerk be authorized to draw from the City Treasurer fifteen dollars, for the purpose of paying for a copy of the first division of land on this island, &c, from the record of land evidence belonging to the State from 1639 to 1634, copied for the city. Passed.

It was voted to petition the General Assembly for several volumes of Colonial Records which contain records of deeds in Rhode Island and mainly in Newport proper.

This board concur with Common Council in ordinance relating to ringing of bells.

Adjourned to Monday next at 9 o'clock to further correct the lists of voters.

COMMON COUNCIL.—Present, R. J. Taylor, Esq., President, Messrs. P. W. Stevens, Crandall, B. H. Stevens, Coggeshall, Townsend, Hazard and Holt.

Ordinance in relation to ringing of bells, read and passed.

Report No. 17 of Committee on Finance, concurred in.

Resolution to pay Charles Hunter for land taken into the highway laid out from Long Lane to Malbone's Lane, concurred in.

Resolution for City Clerk to pay for copy from Colonial Records, concurred in.

Sundry bills were referred to Committee on Finance.

Petition to General Assembly for old books of deeds, concurred in.

Adjourned to March 24th, at 7½ o'clock P. M.

A NEW DODGE.—A few days since, a well dressed, gentlemanly looking man, leading a boy some five years of age, entered a jeweller's shop in Broadway asked the price of a handsome gold bracelet; it was $125. The gentleman examined, admired, and finally bought the article and put it in his pocket He then took out a large purse, full of shining pieces and opened it. At that moment, he suddenly exclaimed, with a look of alarm, "Why! where is Charley!" and dashing the plump purse on the counter he rushed from the store, in frantic search of his boy who had disappeared. The clerk awaited the gentleman's return for some time, with his purse lying where he had cast it down in his excitement. No fear of trickery was entertained, as the purse evidently contained money amounting to twice the value of the bracelet. But when hour after hour passed without the gentleman's return, and it was found the purse contained only brass medals, the size of half-eagles, the clerk and his master both came to the conclusion that their customer was a slippery one, and that his innocent looking boy was not being brought up in the way he should go.—N. Y. Herald.

THE DRED SCOTT CASE—Washington, March 6.—The opinion of the Supreme Court in the Dred Scott Case was delivered to-day by Chief Justice Taney. It was a full and elaborate settlement of the views of the Court. They have decided the following all important points:

First. Negroes whether slaves or free, that is, men of the African race, are not citizens of the United States by the constitution.

Second. The ordinance of 1787 had no independent constitutional force or legal effect subsequently to the adoption of the constitution, and could not operate of itself to confer freedom or citizenship within the northwest territory on negroes not citizens by the constitution.

Third. The provisions of the act of 1820, commonly called the Missouri compromise, in so far as it undertook to exclude negro slavery from, and communicate freedom and citizenship to negroes in the northern part of Louisiana session, was a legislative act exceeding the powers of Congress, and void and of no legal effect to that end.

Deciding these main points, the Supreme Court determined the following incidental points:

1. The expression territory and other property of the Union in the Constitution applies in terms only to such territory as the Union possessed at the time of the adoption of the Constitution.

2. The rights of citizens of the United States emigrating into any federal territory, and the power of the Federal Government there depend on the general provision of the Constitution which defines in this as in all other respects the power of Congress.

3. As Congress does not possess power itself to make enactments relative to the persons or property of citizens of the United States in a federal territory other than such as the Constitution confers, so it cannot constitutionally delegate any such powers to a territorial government organized by it under the Constitution.

4th. The legal condition of a slave in the State of Missouri is not affected by the temporary sojourn of such slaves in any other State, but on his return his condition still depends on the laws of Missouri. As the plaintiff was not a citizen of Missouri, he therefore could not sue in the courts of the United States. The suit must be dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

The delivery of this opinion occupied three hours.

THE DRED SCOTT CASE.—Washington, Saturday, March 7, 1857.—Judge McLean delivered his views in the Dred Scott case to-day, arguing that Slavery is limited to the range of the State where it is established by municipal law. If Congress deem slaves or free colored persons injurious to a Territory, they have the power to prohibit them from becoming settlers therein.

The power to acquire territory carries the power to govern it. The master does not carry with him to the Territory the law of the State from which he removed; hence the Missouri Compromise was constituted, and the presumption is in favor of Freedom. Dred Scott and his family were free under the decision for the last twenty-eight years.

Judge Curtis dissented from the opinion of the majority of the Court, as delivered by Chief Justice Taney, and gave his reasons for the dissent. He maintained that native-born colored persons can be citizens of States and of the United States; that Dred Scott and his family were free when they returned to Missouri; that the power of Congress to make all needful rules and regulations respecting the Territory was not, as the majority of the Court expressed, limited to Territory belonging to the United States at the time of the adoption of the Constitution, but has been applied to five subsequent acquisitions of land; that Congress has power to exclude Slavery from the Territories, having established eight Territorial governments without, and recognized Slavery in six, from the days of Washington to John Quincy Adams.

The opinions occupied five hours in delivery.

Judge Wayne, Grier, and Campbell and Daniel had papers expressing their views on certain points of opinion of the Court but did not read them.

LIFE IN NEW ORLEANS.—We copy the following account of a street fight in New Orleans for the benefit of the conductors on our street railroads, assuring them that if they will but imitate the conduct of their cotemporary at the South, they will receive the thanks of local reporters in search of "a good item." The parties in the fight referred to were a Mr. Lucien W. Adams and Captain Tenbrink, a railroad conductor. The facts are as follows.

Mr. Adams was on horseback, and riding on the railroad track near Common street, when the cars came along, and the horses of which got in contact with Mr. Adams' horse. Upon this he struck the leader of the car horse, and turned him off the track. Mr. Tenbrink, who was on the cars as conductor, shot at Mr. Adams as the cars passed on to the depot. Mr. Adams left his horse at King's livery stable, and went towards the depot with his pistol in hand. Mr. Tenbrink was standing in the street, between the cars and banquette with his pistol, and said to his antagonist "Come on," firing at the same time, and shooting Mr. Adams in the left arm. The pistol of the latter would not go off, for some reason, and he stepped into the furniture store near by to get it adjusted.—He soon after came out, and the two fired at each other simultaneously without effect. Mr. Adams then got behind one of the iron pillars of the verandah, when two more shots were exchanged by the parties, one of Capt. Tenbrink's stricking the pillar behind which Mr. Adams was standing. Their pistols being exhausted Mr. Tenbrink went into the railroad depot and out again the back way, and Mr. Adams was taken to Syme's drug store by his friends, where his wounds were dressed. No arrests in the matter have been made.—Boston Times.

Nothing is more lovely than the honest simplicity of children, as manfested before they have learned of their parents and school teachers to lie and dissimulate.—Take the following specimen:—

"The question at a tea party turning upon the impropriety of one's mixing up cakes with a pinch of snuff in the fingers, fearing some might be scattered in the dough, a lad remarked that he had seen his mother mix cakes with a pinch of snuff in her fingers and not scatter a bit. 'Why, Billy,' replied the offended lady 'how you do lie.' 'Well mother, I don't know but I do,' innocently replied the urchin; 'I do know but you did scatter it a very little.'"

SCIENTIFIC EXPEDITION.—Twenty students from Williams College are to sail this week from New York, in the schooner Dew Drop, on a Natural History voyage of discovery as far as Florida, and probably Cuba. Professor Chadbourne, of the College, leads the party.

A RACE ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.—The United States Mail steamer Atlantic left New York for Liverpool on the 1st inst.—Among the passengers was a man named Winter, (with his wife,) a clerk of a mercantile firm in that city, having in his possession $2,000 belonging to his employers, and which he obtained by breaking open the safe. On his absence being ascertained, together with the amount of money with which he absconded, the principal of the firm obtained a warrant for his apprehension, and took a passage by the British and North America Mail steamship Persia, which sailed three days afterwards. The chances were in favor of the criminal clerk; for though the Persia is the fastest steamer afloat, it could scarcely be expected that she would overtake a full-powered steamer which sailed three days before her. No signs of the pursued steamer was seen until off the port, when the Persia came up with and passed her, arriving in the river two hours before her. On Mr. Hood, the gentleman who boards the Cunard steamers to take charge of the mail, going aboard he was introduced to the pursuing merchant, who asked with some anxiety, if any one had landed from the Atlantic. On being answered in the negative, he stated the case, and asked for a detective. Subsequently accompanied by a police officer, he boarded the Atlantic, and confronted the astonished Winter, whose dreams of security were thus rudely dissipated. Nearly the whole of the missing money was found upon him He was brought ashore, to await the decision of Mr. Nathaniel Hawthorne, United States Consul at Liverpool, who ordered him to be sent back, in custody, by the Atlantic, the steamer which brought him, and which sailed for New York on Wednesday last. Liverpool Times.

EXTRAORDINARY CANINE INSTINCT.—The most remarkable instance of instinct or sagacity in a dog, that we remember to have heard of, occurred in the town of Fairhaven a few days since,—and it was this Two children between the age of five and seven years were playing in the street in Fairhaven, when an unloaded wagon, without a driver, drawn by a runaway horse, was seen approaching at a furious rate. A large dog, a cross of the Newfoundland and mastiff breeds, who was lying near, saw the approaching peril and going to the rescue of the unconscious innocents, took up by their clothes in his teeth, first one of the children and deposited the little thing out of danger on the sidewalk, and then returned and took the other and also placed it safely on the walk. As the wagon was passing, the dog made a spring at the horse and tried to seize him by the nose, but failed to stop him. We have these curious facts from a gentleman whose veracity is unquestionable. Who shall say that the brute creation is devoid of rational intelligence, after this? N. B. Mercury.

Col. Fuller of the New York Mirror is one of the most eloquent impromptu speakers in the editorial fraternity. At a private dinner party in New York, a few days since, being called upon unexpectedly to respond to the great names of his native New England, he spoke thus of Webster:

"The outpourings of his inexhaustible intellect are sublimer than Niagara, and the echoes of his eloquence will outlive the thunder of the cataract."

Of the lamented Channing he said:

"Nor let me forget the scene, the star-eyed, the silver-tongued Channing, from whose loving lips the divine harmonies of the Gospel of Christianity fell like a gentle, music rain, causing the desolate waste places of our hearts to bud and blossom like a rose."

The Colonel could make a fortune as a public lecturer.—Boston Trans.

BEWARE OF OFFICE.—When a wild animal once tastes human flesh, nothing can ever after, says Buffon, dissuade him from human slaughter. When a politician once obtains a public office, no persuasion can ever induce him to go to work—at anything but a nomination for another and another, during the term of his natural existence. If you want to spoil a good citizen for ten years, secure him a birth in the Custom-House. He will never be socially a well man afterward. Send him to Congress and you ruin him for life. He may carry around placards and tickets at the polls, accept a subordinate situation in the police, or run errands for the doorkeeper of a political meeting-house but he will never have independence enough to emancipate himself from his morbid appetite for the "spoils" and go to work like an honest man and a Christian.

FLEAS ON DOGS.—It has been gravely told that the fox has a curious way to rid himself of the nuisance. When Reynard is plagued, he tears up a bunch of moss, which he holds firmly in his mouth, and wades quietly into a stream. As the fleas feel the water they retreat to higher ground, by degrees he immerses the whole of his body except his nose. The fleas having taken refuge upon the moss, Reynard ducks his head, lets the moss escape with its living freight, with no life boat in the offing.—But, as dogs do not pretend to these manœuvres, rub them over, (particularly about the neck) with Scotch snuff, mixed with lard—1 ounce snuff to 4 ounces lard. Limewash the kennel or dog pen, and keep it clean.—London Field.

DEAD LETTERS.—Postmaster General Campbell, in a recent report, states that the number of letters uncalled for or dead is probably three millions, and it would seem absolutely proper that some measures be adopted by the department to insure the delivery of these missives with greater certainty. $120,000 accrue to the Post Offices without their performance of the duty of delivering the letters. This matter has already been brought to the notice of the officials of the department, and probably the Postmaster General of the incoming administration will take the proper measures to amend an evil which is felt to be very unpleasant.

FIRES IN THE UNITED STATES.—The number of large fires in the United States during the month of January was thirty-three, and the aggregate loss resulting was $1,040,000. During the month of February, there were twenty-nine fires and a loss of property amounting to the large sum of $2,030,000. The loss by a fire in Mobile was $850,000; one in Louisville, $190,000; two in California $180,000.

VALUABLE HINT TO HOUSEKEEPERS.—Put a few oyster shells occasionally in your stoves when hot, and you will find those disagreeable customers known as "clinkers" entirely disappear. If one trial is not sufficient, repeat the remedy. We have never tried it, but it is said to be infallible.

THE MAN OF THE IRON MASK.—A Florence journal states that manuscripts have been found within the walls of the fortress of Pigneral where the Man of the Iron Mask was for eleven years a prisoner, which will solve the problem of his identity.

THE DEAREST BOOK EVER PUBLISHED.—The question is often asked, which is the most expensive book ever published? and various answers are given to it. The work, however, which most unquestionably merits this distinction is to be found not in England, where one might naturally expect it, but in France. It is a work intended to reproduce, in fac simile, the most splendid examples of the graphic skill of the Middle Ages, as displayed in the Illuminated Manuscripts of that period It is entitled, "Paintings and Ornaments of French Manuscripts, from the 8th to the end of the 10th Century" It was got up under the direction of a wealthy amateur, Comte Auguste Bastard, and was published in parts at 1800 francs each Twenty of them have appeared, from 1835 to 1846 making a total subscription price of 36,000 francs, or over $7000 for a single copy! One hundred and sixty large folio plates are contained in it, each finished by artists of known ability, forming, in the words of the great bibliographical authority, Brunet, "a veritable chef-d'œuvre," which throws into the shade everything hitherto produced of a like nature. The French Government, with its usual liberal policy, subscribed for a certain number of copies to encourage this colossal undertaking; but we are not aware what other patronage it received, and it would be curious to get at the statistics of such an enterprise—certainly but few copies could be produced. Of course, among changes of ownership and property such a price could not be sustained; and we see a copy now advertised for sale by a London bookseller (as he says) at a reduction of £1175 from the publishing price, or £225 ($1125,) still a respectable sum, to our notions.—We have never heard of a copy of this work in America, but have no doubt that, if not here already, it soon will be an ornament for some of our public or private libraries. Harper's Weekly.

DR. KANE'S DOG.—The Arctic dog brought home by Dr. Kane, has strayed away off in Allegany He has become the property of James McArthur, timber dealer, in Oramel The recently cold weather has kept this large, black, shaggy animal in fine spirits. When they take him into the forest among the timber hewers, where he can do no harm, and remove his muzzle, he cuts all sorts of pranks, seeking the deepest drifts, and actually burying himself for delight; you can see the dry snow move, but no semblance of a dog, till on a sudden out he pops, giving his hairy fleece a tremendous shake, and away he runs for another dive. Mr. McArthur calls him "Es-ki-mo"(Esquimaux) not a very smooth name, but characteristic. To look "Esk', full in the face, you see almost a likeness of a black bear, though his eyes are rather languid. His long, soft, shaggy covering is nearly equal in bulk to his body. When left to run at large in the village, he wears a muzzle to prevent his destroying the pigs and the chickens.

BREEDING FISH.—During the past winter, Mr. E. C. Kellogg, has succeeded, without much trouble, in breeding trout in his cellar, He placed a box with proper partitions, in his cellar, and put some sand, gravel and stones in the bottom. He then procured two trout, a male and female and went through the process which has proved successful in France, of pressing the spawn from the female and placing it in his box. He then filled the box with Connecticut River water, and kept a small stream constantly running through it—This was about seven weeks ago. He has now seventeen fine, lively young trout, from half an inch to an inch in length, and more in the process of hatching. By holding the eggs to the light, little fish can be seen in them distinctly. The old ones are kept in a tub, and are not allowed to range among the small fry. The little ones of a week old have all the characteristics of the old fish, and they will dart under a stone with great rapidity, when the water is stirred up a little.—Hartford Times

PRESIDENT BUCHANAN'S CABINET.—The names of the new cabinet were sent to the Senate on Friday, and confirmed by that body, as follows:

Secretary of State—Lewis Cass, of Michigan.

Secretary of the Treasury—Howell Cobb, of Georgia.

Secretary of War—John B. Floyd, of Virginia.

Secretary of the Navy—Isaac Toucey, of Connecticut.

Secretary of Interior—Jacob Thompson, of Mississippi.

Postmaster General—Aaron V. Brown, of Tennessee

Attorney General—Jeremiah S. Black, of Pennsylvania.

HOW TO MAKE GOOD CHEESE.—Old Squire J——, of Addison county, Vt., was famous for bringing to market a better article of cheese than any of his agricultural neighbors, which occasioned a merchant to inquire "how it happened." "I think I can tell you the secret of it," said the squire. "You may have noticed that, when the milk stands for a while in the pans, there is a kind of yellow scum that rises on the top of it. Now some women are so dreadful neat that they skim this all off; but my wife ain't so peticklar, but stirs all in together, and ra-aly, I think the cheese is all the better for it." Post.

HARD SPELLING IN A COURT OF JUSTICE.—At a northern assize, a Judge found it difficult to write down the name of a witness, and asked him to repeat it. But the difficulty was not removed by the repetition, and he was then asked to spell it.—The spelling only made confusion worse confounded, for the witness came out in a breath with the following oral communication: "O double T, I double U, E. double L, double U, double O D." "I never heard of such a name," said his lordship, as he threw down his pen in despair, after a vain attempt to reduce its doubles to writing. They were at last resolved into Ottiwell Wood.—Leisure Hour.

The best definition we ever heard of "bearing false witness against your neighbor," was given by a little girl in school. She said "it was when nobody did nothing, and somebody went and told of it."—How many there are in every community who are guilty of following this ignoble occupation.

ARCTIC MEDAL.—Queen Victoria has commanded that a medal be granted to all persons, of every rank and class, who have been engaged in the several expeditions to the Arctic regions, whether of discovery or search, between the years 1818 and 1855, both inclusive.

DISAPPOINTMENT.—The sugar cane cuttings brought to New Orleans from South American, by the United States expedition prove to be nearly worthless No more than one box out of ten is good.

It is said that Horace Vernet, the French artist is to receive two hundred thousand dollars for a historical painting, to be placed in the Capitol at Washington.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

PROVIDENCE, Friday, Feb. 27.

Petition of Selah Ford, for restoration of child. Read and concurred.

Title XX—Respecting Mills, etc, received back from the House with certain amendments, was taken up. Pending the discussion of the amendments, the Senate, by a vote of 16 to 10, adjourned to 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon.

HOUSE.—Petition of Ichabod Northup and 668 other colored citizens asking that their children may have the same rights and privileges as other children in the public schools in this State. The petition was read and referred to the committee on Education.

The House adjourned to Tuesday at 10 o'clock.

PROVIDENCE, Monday, March 9.

SENATE.—The Senate met pursuant to adjournment,—no quorum being present, adjourned to Tuesday at 10 o'clock.

PROVIDENCE, Tuesday, March 10.

SENATE.—Resolution for the appointment of a Joint Select Committee to enquire what, if any, amendment to the Constitution of this State is rendered necessary by the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Dred Scott case. Read and passed, and Messrs. Eames, Cowee, and A. Peckham appointed the committee on the behalf of the Senate.

Petition of Zephaniah Bennett for restoration to the rights of citizenship, was presented and recommended by the Governor. Read, consented to, and prayer of petitioner granted.

Petition of the stockholders of the Washington County Bank for change of location. Read and passed in concurrence.

Petition of Wm Littlefield and others for a repeal of the charter of the city of Newport. Concurred in order of notice.

Petition for an act to incorporate the Newport and Bristol Railroad Company—Concurred in order of notice.

Resolutions relative to repairs on the State House at Newport, were read and referred to the Committee on State Property.

The Senate then adjourned to Wednesday morning

HOUSE.—The House was not called to order till half past 10 o'clock, when a quorum of members appeared in their seats—The record, which was full almost to tediousness, was read by Mr. Van Zandt, recording clerk.

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be and they are here instructed to consider and report forthwith to this House, what alterations or amendments, if any, are necessary to be made in the Constitution of this State, in order more effectually to secure to persons of African descent the right of citizenship.

Petition of Polly Champlin, a Narragansett Indian, for leave to sell real estate, was granted.

Petition of Tobias S. Ross and wife for leave to convey real estate to their grandson, was granted in concurrence.

The rest of the day was taken up in consideration of the Revised Code. Adj'd.

PROVIDENCE, Wednesday, March 11.

SENATE.—By a vote of 15 to 12, reconsidered the vote whereby it refused to restore the punishment for the crime of murder. The subject, however was not disposed of, but will come up again on some future day.

"Title XXXIV. Of the Militia," as reported by the Joint Select Committee on the Revised Code, was taken up.

Mr. John H Clarke moved to amend chapter 239, allowing pay to the militia and providing that they shall receive pay for two days service instead of four and addressed the Senate at considerable length in support of his motion

His Excellency the Governor, Messrs. Anthony of Johnston, Anthony of Newport, Eames of Providence, and Clarke of Warwick addressed the Senate on the subject. The question on being put was decided in the negative, so that the bill remains as originally reported by the Joint Select Committee on the Revised Code.

Title XXXIV, was then passed to a third reading and ordered to be communicated to the House, when the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—The Committee on Judiciary to which was referred a memorial from the Rhode Island Society for the Encouragement of Domestic Industry in relation to the preservation of certain fish in ponds and rivers, reported that the subject had been provided in the revised statutes, and that no action was needed on the memorial. The report was accepted, and the memorial ordered to be communicated to the Senate.

Resolution authorizing William K. T[illegible] boy and wife to take name of Tr[illegible] was passed.

The joint committee of conference on the disagreement of the two houses in section 10, chapter 36, of Title VIII reported that the committee had agreed that the section should stand in the following words:

Section 10. All rateable personal property shall be taxed in the town where the owner shall have had his actual place of abode for the larger portion of the twelve months next preceding the time when the tax is ordered.

The report was accepted, and the recommendation of the committee agreed to.

Resolution from the Senate in relation to the petition of Pardon Sweet and other Narragansett Indians, passed in concurrence.

The Committee on Corporations reported a resolution continuing, until the next session of the General Assembly, on an order of notice, the petition of Benjamin Fish and others of Portsmouth for an act incorporating the Aquidneck Mutual Insurance Company; which was passed.

An act incorporating the Highlands Institute in the town of Barrington was passed.

A joint resolution came down from the Senate appointing a committee to inquire what legislation is needed upon the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the Dred Scott case. The resolution was passed in concurrence, and Messrs. Jenckes and Parkhurst, of Providence, Jackson of Scituate, Whipple of Coventry, and Boomer, of Fall River were appointed the committee on the part of the House.

The Senate communicated to the House a report of the Commissioner of the Narragansett tribe of Indians, in relation to the present condition and future prospects of the tribe; which was passed.

An act making a change in the [illegible] of the reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Court, passed.

The House adjourned to Thursday [illegible]ing.

She is to be employed in the general freighting business, and commanded by Capt. Dorr, late of schr Metis.—She sailed from New York 10th inst for Sagua La Grande to load for this port.

There has been quite an excitement in Albany arising from the fact of the proprietors of one of the slaughter houses in that city having cut up, salted and packed down, the carcasses of the cattle drowned in the late flood. The Board of Health of Albany visited the slaughter house in question, and described the scene they there witnessed as disgusting in the extreme.—The Board of Health afterward held a meeting, declared the meat a nuisance and dangerous to the public health, and ordered that the police should destroy it forthwith.

Quite a revival has taken place in several of the churches in this town during the past winter. Some thirty or forty persons have joined the M. E. Church, on probation, and some twenty or thirty have united with the Baptist Church. Several have also joined the Congregational Church. On Sunday last, thirteen females received the ordinance of Baptism at the Methodist alter, and five were immersed by Rev. Mr. Reed, of the Baptist Church.—Bristol Phe.

Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry.
Not only cures every species of lung complaints, but it exerts a very powerful influence on a DISEASED LIVER.—In this complaint it has undoubtedly proved more efficacious than any remedy hitherto employed, and in numerous instances when patients had endured long and severe suffering from the disease, without receiving the least benefit from various remedies, and when mercury had been resorted to in vain, the use of this Balsam has restored the liver to a healthy action, and in many instances effected permanent cures, after every known remedy had failed to produce this desired effect.
None genuine unless signed I. BUTTS on the wrapper.
SETH W. FOWLE & CO. 138 Washington st., Boston, proprietors. Sold by HAZARD & CASWELL, Newport and by Druggists generally.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills. The applicability of these extraordinary medicaments to the disorders of all climates renders them indispensible to all who journey by sea or land. Scurvey, the most terrible scourge of seafaring men, is eradicated by the use of the Ointment; while the Pills by their alterative and conservative operation upon the stomach, the secretions and the bowels. soon relieve the worst cases of billious fever, diarrhea and stomach complaint. Taken as a preventative, they fortify the system against the disorders consequent upon changes of temperature, and deprive the process of aclimation of its principle danger. Emigrants to the far West had better go there unprovided with implements of labor, than without these unequalled curatives.

Oxygenated Bitters.
Testimony from J. C. Barter, Collector of the Port of Ogdensburg, N. Y.
Ogdensburg, December 1, 1851. Gentlemen.—I have been much afflicted, for the greatest part of the year ending at last midsummer, with a singular derangement of the bowels, connected with occasional attacks of Dyspepsia.—During the last summer, I accidentally took up a paper, containing testimonials respecting your Oxygenated Bitters. In one instance, where relief had followed their use, I found my symptoms and condition so accurately described, that it determined me upon trying them. I accordingly procured, and have used several bottles, and find in my renovated strength and health, satisfactory evidence, that in my case, they have accomplished all that I could wish.
Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
J. C. BARTER.

Dr. Baumback in his travels on the Cape of Good Hope says: I found very frequently among the Dutch Boors of the back country, Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which they keep hung up by a thong around the neck of the bottle to a peg over their hammocks. Indeed this seems to be their sole protection against the throat and lung disorders which are quite prevalent among them. I thought it a speaking comment on the practical genius of the American people, that they should furnish the staple, I believe the only remedy this people buy to use. Asking if they used the same manufacturers Pills, they told me that better purgatives grew all around them than any body could prepare.

Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam, for Affections of the throat, Lungs and chest.
The expression of opinion of Alfred Guild, M. D., Boston, Mass:—"having prescribed the Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam in many lung complaints, with uniform success, I can with confidence recommend its use for all those affections for which it is offered as a remedy."
John A. Berry, M. D., of Saco, Me., says—"During a practice of twenty years, I have seen used all the popular remedies for Coughs, and am well satisfied that your Vegetable Pulmonary Balsam is best, and I hope it will be better known and more generally used."

☞ Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative is said to be the only sure cure for baldness and gray hair. It removes all scurf, dandruff and scrofulous eruptions from the scalp, and in a few days restores gray hair to its original color and beauty. This preparation contains no coloring matter, but resuscitates the hair by invigorating and restoring perfect health to the scalp, thus imparting new life and vigor to the roots, and by them causing healthy fluid to flow into each separate hair. THERE IS NOTHING IN THE WHOLE LIST OF MEDICINE creating such a stir amongst invalids as Dr. Sanford's Invigorator or Liver Remedy. It gives such quick relief as to convince the patient of receiving benefit almost as soon as the medicine is taken. We do not know of a single instance where it has been taken without benefit and in nearly all a complete cure is effected by its use. It has acquired its wide popularity simply because it does what it is recommended to do. It is constantly enlarging its circle of friends, carrying healing on its wings and joy to the hearts of those suffering from Liver Complaint, Jaundice, Dyspepsia or general debility. Feb 28—2m.

The I. B. of L. & H.—The Indian Balsam of Liverwort and Hoarhound is doing more good in America than can be calculated in dollars. Lives are saved by its soothing influence, and it ever proves "a ready friend in trouble," in common Coughs, Colds and other precursors of the Consumption so fatal in our climate. This is no humbug nostrum, but a real Indian medicine, discovered by an Oneida Doctress, Nameonitah, a biographical sketch of whose life may be obtained, and may be relied upon in all Pulmonary complaints. It may be found at Weeks & Potter's, 154 Washington street, Boston, General Agents.

JAMES PYLE'S DIETETIC SALÆRATUS is acknowledged, by all who try it, the purest and best article in use. It is entirely free from the caustic impurities of common saleratus, so destructive to the digestive organs, while for making Biscuit, Cake, and all kinds of Pastry, admirably light it excels the best baking soda, and requires less shortening to produce the desired richness. Parents who regard their children's health should use no other.
It is sold at all the groceries, in 1 lb, ½lb and ¼lb packages, with the name of James Pyle thereon, without which none is genuine

STATE OF RHODE ISLAND, COUNTY OF NEWPORT.
I JULIA M. LAWRENCE, of the City and County of Newport and State of Rhode Island, widow of JAMES LAWRENCE, late a Captain in the Navy of the United States, do depose and say that in the month of August 1856, a land bounty warrant for one hundred and sixty acres of land, No. 38,383, was issued from the Pension Office in Washington in my favour. That said warrant has never came into my hands or possession, and the same is supposed to be lost.
I further state that I have not sold, assigned, or voluntarily parted with, said warrant.
That I have made application to the Pension Office in Washington for a duplicate of the same, that this affidavit is made in conformity to the regulations of the Pension Office, and to prevent any person from fraudulently using said warrant.

ONLY ONE BOTTLE OF
DR. SANFORD'S
INVIGORATOR,
OR LIVER REMEDY.
IS REQUIRED TO CURE ONE TROUBLED with Liver Complaints, unless the most desperate of cases, when the second bottle will, with scarce a single failure, restore the patient to health and vigor. We wish to call the attention of all to these facts, that the invigorator is compounded by a physicain who has used it in his practice for the past twenty years with a success almost credulous, and that it is entirely vegetable, being composed wholly of gums.
Some idea of the strength of these gums may be formed when it is known one bottle of the invigorator contains as much strength as one hundred doses of calomel without any of its deleterious effects.
It must be known that all these are Liver diseases, or caused by a deranged Liver, and to cure them needs a Liver medicine and one of great power. The invigorator is such a medicine; it has medicinal powers, never before discovered, that will cure all diseases of the Liver, no matter of how long standing, or what may be their form. The active medicinal virtues extracted from the gums used, is such as to be astonishing to all who see their effects, for none can use the medicine without receiving benefit. It acts as a gentle cathartic and should always be taken in sufficient quantities to operate on the bowels gently. The best way to take it is to take the medicine in the mouth, and then take some water and swallow both together. In this way the medicine will scarcely be tasted.

THE NEWEST AND GREATEST IMPROVEMENT.
THE MELAINOTYPE.
THE MELAINOTYPE possesses excellencies that none of the rest have, and very much resemble a painting on ivory, so clear is it in its lineal relations, so vigorous in tone, and so just in expression; several of our principal artists have highly lauded the Melainotype and declared it equal to painting, with twice its accuracy.—This new kind of picture has numerous advantages, it can be taken in a moment, almost, and is much cheaper, while the plate requires none of that troublesome and tedious process necessary for Daguerrotypes and Ambrotypes; one plate should the likeness not be satisfactory, can without any difficulty be used again. The melainotype is not affected by light, rain, atmosphere, or acids, several of them having been exposed for a number of months on the roof of a building without the least change in their beauty or shades; they are now being taken on a metalic plate so that they may be sent in a letter without danger the expense of postage being no more than that charged for a letter.
Call and examine for yourselves at the only place in Rhode Island where they are taken.

Legal Notices.

Philadelphia, December 22d, 1856.

To the Hon the Court of Probate of the City of Newport, State of Rhode Island.

THE UNDERSIGNED, executors to the last will and testament of late of Morristown, in the State of Pennsylvania, deceased, respectfully represent that Bertha F. Cooke and Walter H. Cooke, minor children, over fourteen years and under twenty one years of age, of the late David Cooke, are possessed of certain real estate in the city of Newport and State aforesaid, and respectfully request your Honor to appoint John W. Davis, of the city and county of Newport, Guardian of the said Bertha F. Cooke and Walter H. Cooke, as relates to the real estate in said city and county of Newport, and as in duty bound will ever pray.

DAVID COOKE,

R. W. CUSHMAN, [seal]
MARY W. COOKE, [seal]

We the undersigned Bertha F. Cooke and Walter H. Cooke, for ourselves choose John W. Davis of the city of Newport, to be our Guardian for our estate in Newport, Rhode Island.

BERTHA F. COOKE, [seal]
WALTER H. COOKE, [seal]

State of Pennsylvania, Montgomery County, ss.

On the twenty-second day of December, 1856, personally appeared before me a Justice of the Peace, R. W. Cushman, Mary W. Cooke, Bertha F. Cooke and Walter H. Cooke, and acknowledged the above instrument signed by them, to be their own voluntary act and deed.

Witness my hand and seal,

Miscellaneous.

GREEN SAND MARL OF NEW JERSEY.

THE NEW JERSEY FERTILIZER COMPANY is now prepared to receive orders for this important manure. For all lands upon which ashes are beneficial the Marl is more than a substitute.

Prof. Cook in his Annual Report to the Legislature of New Jersey says: "the value of these Marls is best seen in the rich and higly cultivated district which has been improved, almost made, by their use: but it may be interesting to examine the causes of their great value in Agriculture, and to compare them with other fertilizers. For example: The potash alone may be taken at an average of five per cent. of the whole weight of the Marl, a bushel when dry weighing eighty pounds, and in the proportion mentioned would contain four pounds of potash: this is nearly as much as there is in a bushel of unleached wood ashes." And again—it is probable that the great value of the Marl is to be found in the fact that it contains nearly all the substances necessary to make up the ash of our common cultivated plants.

Price, delivered on board vessel at the wharves of the Company at Portland Heights on Raritan Bay, New Jersey, seven cents per bushel. For further particulars, see circulars, sent free of postage. Orders for other fertilizers will receive prompt attention. Address either of the undersigned.

N. B.—Those wishing Marl for Spring use, should order immediately to secure its early shipment. Orders will be filled in rotation.

Something for the Million!!
PROFESSOR WOOD'S
HAIR RESTORATIVE,

WE CALL THE ATTENTION OF OLD AND YOUNG TO this wonderful preparation, which turns back to its original color, gray hair—covers the head of the bald with a luxurient growth—removes the dandruff, itching, and all cutaneous eruptions—causes a continual flow of the natural fluids; and hence if used as a regular dressing for the hair, will preserve its color, and keep it from falling to extreme old age, in all its natural beauty. We, call then, upon the bald, the gray, or diseased in scalp, to use it; and surely the young will not, as they value the flowing locks, or the witching curl, ever be without it. Its praise is upon the tongue of thousands.

Watertown, Mass., May 1, 1855.

PROF. O. J. WOOD; Allow me to attest the virtues and magic powers of your Hair Restorative. Three months since, being exceedingly gray, I purchased and soon commenced to use, two bottles; and it soon began to tell, in restoring the silver locks to their native color, and the hair which was before dry and harsh, and falling off, now became soft and glossy, and it ceased falling; the dandruff disappeared, and the scalp lost all the disagreeable itching so annoying before, and now, I not only look but feel young again.

Yours Respectfully, etc. CHARLES WHITNEY.

New York, Oct. 2, 1855.

PROF. O. J. WOOD—Dear Sir:—After reading the advertisement in one of the New York Journals, of your celebrated Hair Restorative, I procured a half pint bottle, and was so much pleased with it that I continued its use for two months, and am satisfied it is decidedly the best preparation before the public. It at once removed all the dandruff and unpleasant itching from the scalp, and has restored my hair naturally, and I have no doubt permanently so.

You have her permission to refer to me all who entertain any doubt of its performing all that is claimed for it.

MISS FEEKS, 26 1-2 Greenwich Av.

I have used Prof. O. J. wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effect. It restored my hair where it had fallen off; it cleans the head and renders the hair soft and smooth—much more so than oil.

Louisville, Nov. 1 1855, MARY ATKINSON.

State of Illinois, Carlisle, June 27, 1855.

I have used Prof. O. J. Wood's Hair Restorative, and have admired its wonderful effect. My hair was becoming, as I thought, prematurely gray, but by the use of the "Restorative," it has resumed its original color, and I have no doubt, permanently so.

SIDNEY BREESE, Ex Senator United States.

From the Washington Star.

Among the many preparations now in use for restoring, preserving, and beautifying the hair, there are none that we can recommend with more confidence than Prof. Wood's Hair Restorative, now in general use throughout the United States. This preparation possesses the most invigorating qualities, and never fails in producing the most happy results when applied according to directions. We refer our readers to the adverisement for a few of the innumerable certificates which have been sent by parties, who have been benefitted by it, and who feel happy in giving testimony to its wonderful effects produced on them.

BROWNELL'S VENTILATOR,
PATENTED SEPT. 16, 1856.

The following is a list of sizes with the price of each annexed, of BROWNELL'S VENTILATOR which for all purposes where ventilation and a strong draft are required; and are particularly designed for Rail Road Cars, Public Buildings, Smoky Chimnies & Caboose & Cabin pipes

The advantage proposed by this ventilator over all others is, it gives a uniform draft to a chimney, and at the same time excludes water, thus doing away with two great evils—a back draft and drippings down the chimney. The arrangement of this ventilator is very simple; it can be easily adjusted to any use for which it may be required, and it is not liable to get out of order.

Medicine.

A MEDICAL REVOLUTION,
THE WORLD UNANIMOUS!

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.
THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the lungs, or any other imporatnt organs. It penetrates the surface to the inferior through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fervent earth, diffusing its cool and regenerating influence.

SKIN DISEASES & GLANDULAR SWELLINGS.

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflammatory action of this Ointment. Angry Eruptions, such as SALT RHEUM, ERYSIPELAS, TETTER, RINGWORM, SCALD HEAD, NETTLE, SCABIES (or ITCH) &c., all die out and return no more, under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world proves its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

ULCERS, TUMORS AND SORES.

The effect of this unrivaled external remedy upon Scrofula, and other virulent ulcers and Sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterwards complete are safe as well as permanent.

WOUNDS, BRUISES, BURNS AND SCALDS.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, BRUISES, BURNS, SCALDS, RHEUMATISM, STIFFNESS OF THE JOINTS, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvelous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading Hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

UNDENIABLE TESTIMONY.

The medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea, have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bunions,	Burns,	Chapped Hands,
Chilblains,	Fistula,	Gout,
Lumbago,	Mercurial Eruptions,	Piles,
Rheumatism,	Ringworm,	Salt Rheum,
Scalds,	Skin Diseases	Swelled Glands,
Sore Legs,	Sore Breasts,	Sore Heads,
Sore Throats,	Sores of all kinds,	Sprains,
Stiff Joints,	Tetter,	Ulcers,
Venereal Sores	Wounds, of all kinds.

, Sold at the Manufactories of Professor HOLLOWAY, 80 Maiden Lane, New York, and 244 Strand, London, by all respectable Druggists and Dealers in Medicine throughout the United States and the civilized world, in boxes at 25 cents, 62 cents and $1 each.

☞ There is considerable saving by taking the larger sizes.

N. B.—Directions for the guidance of patients in every disorder are affixed to each box.

CAUTION!—None are genuine unless the words "Holloway New York and London," are discernible as a water-mark in every leaf of the book of directions around each pot or box; the same may be plainly seen by holding the leaf to the light. A handsome reward will be given to any one rendering such information as may lead to the detection of any party or parties counterfeiting the medicines or vending the same, knowing them to be spurious.

AYER'S Cathartic Pills,
(SUGAR COATED,)
ARE MADE TO
CLEANSE THE BLOOD AND CURE THE SICK.
Invalids, Fathers, Mothers, Physicians, Philanthropists, read their Effects, and judge of their Virtues.
FOR THE CURE OF

Headache, Sick Headache, Foul Stomach.

PITTSBURG, PA., May 1, 1856.

DR. J. C. AYER. Sir: I have been repeatedly cured of the worst headache any body can have by a dose or two of your Pills. It seems to arise from a foul stomach, which they cleanse at once. If they will cure others as they do me, the fact is worth knowing.

Yours with great respect, ED. W. PREBLE,
Clerk of Steamer Clarion.

Bilious Disorders and Liver Complaints.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, WASHINGTON, D. C., 7 Feb., 1856.

SIR: I have used your Pills in my general and hospital practice ever since you made them, and cannot hesitate to say they are the best cathartic we employ. Their regulating action on the liver is quick and decided, consequently they are an admirable remedy for derangements of that organ. Indeed, I have seldom found a case of bilious disease so obstinate that it did not readily yield to them.

Fraternally yours, ALONZO BALL, M. D.
Physician of the Marine Hospital.

Dysentery, Relax, and Worms.

POST OFFICE, HARTLAND, LIV. CO., MICH., Nov. 15, 1855.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the perfection of medicine. They have done my wife more good than I can tell you. She had been sick and pining away for months. Went off to be doctored at great expense, but got no better. She then commenced taking your Pills, which soon cured her, by expelling large quantities of worms (dead) from her body. They afterwards cured her and our two children of bloody dysentery. One of our neighbors had it bad, and my wife cured him with two doses of your Pills, while others around us paid from five to twenty dollars doctors bills, and lost much time, without being cured entirely even then. Such a medicine as yours, which is actually good and honest, will be prized here.

GEO. J. GRIFFIN, Postmaster.

Indigestion and Impurity of the Blood.

From Rev. J. V. Himes, Pastor of Advent Church, Boston.

DR. AYER: I have used your Pills with extraordinary success in my family and among those I am called to visit in distress. To regulate the organs of digestion and purify the blood they are the very best remedy I have ever known, and I can confidently recommend them to my friends. Yours, J. V. HIMES.

WARSAW, WYOMING CO., N. Y., Oct. 24, 1855.

DEAR SIR: I am using your Cathartic Pills in my practice, and find them an excellent purgative to cleanse the system, and purify the fountains of the blood.

JOHN G. MEACHAM, M. D.

Erysipelas, Scrofula, King's Evil, Tetter, Tumors, and Salt Rheum.

From a Forwarding Merchant of St. Louis, Feb. 4, 1856.

DR. AYER: Your Pills are the paragon of all that is great in medicine. They have cured my little daughter of ulcerous sores upon her hands and feet that had proved incurable for years. Her mother has been long grievously afflicted with blotches and pimples on her skin and in her hair. After our child was cured, she also tried your Pills, and they have cured her. ASA MORGRIDGE.

Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and Gout.

From the Rev. Dr. Hawkes, of the Methodist Epis. Church.

PULASKI HOUSE, SAVANNAH, GA., Jan. 6, 1856.

HONORED SIR: I should be ungrateful for the relief your skill has brought me if I did not report my case to you. A cold settled in my limbs and brought on excruciating neuralgic pains, which ended in chronic rheumatism. Notwithstanding I had the best of physicians, the disease grew worse and worse, until, by the advice of your excellent agent in Baltimore, Dr. Mackenzie, I tried your Pills. Their effects were slow, but sure. By persevering in the use of them I am now entirely well.

SENATE CHAMBER, BATON ROUGE, LA., 5 Dec., 1855.

DR. AYER: I have been entirely cured by your Pills of Rheumatic Gout—a painful disease that had afflicted me for years. VINCENT SLIDELL.

For Dropsy, Plethora, or kindred Complaints, requiring an active purge, they are an excellent remedy.

For Costiveness or Constipation, and as a Dinner Pill, they are agreeable and effectual.

Fits, Suppression, Paralysis, Inflammation, and even Deafness, and Partial Blindness, have been cured by the alterative action of these Pills.

Most of the pills in market contain Mercury, which, although a valuable remedy in skilful hands, is dangerous in a public pill, from the dreadful consequences that frequently follow its incautious use. These contain no mercury or mineral substance whatever.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL
FOR THE RAPID CURE OF COUGHS, COLDS, HOARSENESS, INFLUENZA, BRONCHITIS, WHOOPING COUGH, CROUP, ASTHMA, INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION, and for the relief of consumptive patients in advanced stages of the disease.

We need not speak to the public of its virtues. Throughout every town, and almost every hamlet of the American States, its wonderful cures of pulmonary complaints have made it already known. Nay, few are the families in any civilized country on this continent without some personal experience of its effects; and fewer yet the communities any where which have not among them some living trophy of its victory over the subtle and dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. While it is the most powerful antidote yet known to man for the formidable and dangerous diseases of the pulmonary organs, it is also the pleasantest and safest remedy that can be employed for infants and young persons. Parents should have it in store against the insidious enemy that steals upon them unprepared. We have abundant grounds to believe the CHERRY PECTORAL saves more lives by the consumptions it prevents than those it cures. Keep it by you, and cure your colds while they are curable, nor neglect them until no human skill can master the inexorable canker that, fastened on the vitals, eats your life away. All know the dreadful fatality of lung disorders, and as they know too the virtues of this remedy, we need not do more than to assure them it is still made the best it can be. We spare no cost, no care, no toil to produce it the most perfect possible, and thus afford those who rely on it the best agent which our skill can furnish for their cure.
